Bonsai is a term that refers to an ancient art form.

First popularized in the early 17th century, this art form involves the process of pruning and sculpting trees to create an artistic look. The term bonsai is typically associated with small trees, but bonsai can be quite large. The term bonsai only refers to the style of the pruning and wiring, not to the size. Bonsai trees are valued for their aesthetic appeal and natural beauty.

Here at Bonsai Co. we offer the highest quality bonsai that have been grown and styled by bonsai artists for many years. We sell bonsai of different species and sizes. Each of our trees is priced by size and species. Each of our trees has been expertly styled to achieve the most beautiful and aesthetically appealing form.

Species

Japanese Maple

Japanese Maple are a beautiful variety of tree that have vibrant green or red leaves. These trees thrive in a partially shaded area with even watering.

Juniper

Junipers are a hardy variety of tree with a lush canopy of needles. They are a more advanced bonsai as they need consistent care.

Ficus

Ficus are a great variety of bonsai for beginners as they are easy to care for and can be kept in a sunny indoor space.

Chinese Elm

Chinese Elm are another good variety for beginners as they tolerate a wide variety of temperatures and conditions.
